Guilt.
Commit a crime, and the earth is made of glass.—Emerson.

The requests of the engineers and firemen were very tactful but were rejected by the railroads. They conceded that the existing basis for a day's wage, namely ten hours, or making of a run of one hundred miles, was equitable, and therefore refused to make as it is now requested eight hours or one hundred miles a run in freight service, and four hours or one hundred miles a day's work in passenger service.

FOREIGN TREATIES.

These are strenuous days down in Washington for Secretary Bryan in his efforts to force through the Colombian and Nicaraguan treaties and at the same time aid in the A-B-C harmony plan at Niagara Falls. The Christian Science Monitor says of the two South American treaties:

"Not wholly satisfied with evidence put before it the foreign relations committee of the United States senate proposes more than ordinary scrutiny and investigation of the new treaties negotiated with Nicaragua and with Colombia by the department of state. Diplomacy of the older school would have resented such a probe, and such publicity as will go with it, but it is part of the process of the age based on a popular demand for more illumination of all forms of state administration, especially where, as in this case, statecraft on the one hand and economic and high finance on the other hand are so intimately related."

"Society, facing this new demand, has to see to it that the clamor for illumination of hitherto concealed phases of international relations shall be based on some higher motive than personal antipathy to the responsible negotiator or partisanship that would subordinate national interests to partisan ends. Pure motives alone justify the challenge that a foreign minister or chief executive show his hand fully. Surely he must be left with some discretion as to the method of disclosure and the extent of his confidence to a large and not always reticent group."

"The principles involved in the new treaties with Nicaragua and Colombia are so important and far-reaching in their bearing upon all future Pan-American history that it is quite proper that there should be full debate. If the Nicaraguan treaty were to be ratified in anything like its tentative form which Secretary Bryan has discussed with the senate committee, the United States would be committed to a protectorate system in Central America quite like that already existing in Cuba. Both treaties are based on a theory of extension of authority by the United States, which has found popular favor since 1898 and has had support from republican presidents and secretaries of state. Indorsed now by a democratic administration as part of a peace policy, the advocacy is the more significant. Debate on partisan lines, therefore, is not likely. This sort of cleavage was not conspicuous in the final vote on the Panama tolls repeal. It should not be conspicuous as the new phase of Pan-American relations come up for settlement."

HATRED OF GRINGO.

"It is interesting to read how the hatred of the so-called 'Gringo' is so characteristic of the Mexicans of a certain class. It appears to be born in their system and has never been eradicated. The term 'Gringo' itself, they tell us, came during the first march of the American forces through Mexico back in the Forties. The soldiers sang a song, popular in those days, the first line of which was: 'Green grow the rushes, O.' And from that came the term 'Gringo.' The Engineering and Mining Journal, however, gives us the cause for the hatred of foreigners, and says:

"The hatred of many Mexicans for the gringo is easily explainable and also is excusable. In the early days of the American industrial invasion, back in the eighties, the Americans who went to Mexico were largely of a class that their own country was not proud of. Not a few of them were fugitives from justice, and the great majority was composed of the rough necks of the frontier. Fraternizing with the Mexican peons and peledos, and by entering with them into drunken carousals, brawls, and by treating them roughly always, naturally failing to win their respect there is no wonder that the better class of Mexicans came to look upon the 'gringo' as the representative of a rude, inferior people. When a better class of Americans went to Mexico, and had to do chiefly with the lower class of that country, they naturally came to regard the 'gringer' in the same way. 'This is a common misunderstanding, do not understand each other. The British gentleman meets an American drifter, finds fault because he does not have the manners and ideas of one of his own dukes, and jumps to the conclusion that he has studied a fair sample of all Americans. Similarly, we look upon our 'dagoes' as typical of Italy, and our 'wops' as representatives of some foreign people—Slavonians, Croats, Lithuanians, Ruthenians, etc.—whom we are unable to identify precisely, and lump, perhaps, as Austrians, and thereby derive some erroneous ideas about Italy and Austria respectively."

"The Mexicans are able to learn better of Americans, and appreciate them, when they have a chance. Thus, the American occupation of Vera Cruz does not seem to have been particularly resented by the residents of that place."

Chairman Amerpohl of the None Such Bros. circus parade announces that this far he has "57 Varieties" of shows and they are all good ones. The old Auditorium building resembles a "green" room of a theatre these days and wonderful conceptions that would make the average circus man green with envy are being constructed.

The question of saloon licenses for retail liquor dealers who have violated the law is being taken up by the retailers themselves and it is expected that the council will approve of their action. Now is the time for this new organization to show they are in earnest in aiding in enforcing the laws and ordinances.

We may now expect fireworks in that senatorial campaign with Tom Morris, McGovern, and last but not least Levi Bancroft all out for the office. Bancroft does not hesitate to call an opponent by his right name and the campaign against the "Mad Bullhorns" of Wisconsin politics should be interesting.

President Wilson says the nation is on the verge of a great era of prosperity and the same telegraph wires that carry this wonderful message announce the failure for millions upon millions of one of the big eastern dry goods concerns. This is the advance agent of the prosperity era, perhaps?

President Wilson is peeved if anyone dares to dispute his right to hit a golf ball just as far as he wants to at any time whether it is dangerous to other players on the course or not. If his action is objected to he takes his clubs right home and will not play any more.

The Chicago Herald has taken up the cudgel in behalf of the property owners and workmen, in a war against the middle man who extorts bribes from the wealthy that big buildings can be constructed without labor trouble.

It looks like strenuous times this fall in the republican camp with such men as Dahl, Hutton, Roethe and Hull seeking the gubernatorial nomination and last but not least Phillip in the field as the fifth aspirant for the office.

Fire has swept out the very heart of historic old Salem, the New England city, famous for its "witchcraft, ducking stool, scolds gag" and all the other punishments of the early Puritan days.

Madison has barely recovered from the old line conservative republican convention when it is invaded by the Christian Endeavourers. There you have a combination—politics and religion.

The English suffragettes are still keeping up their tactics of destruction of valuable and historic properties in their efforts to gain their end, equal franchise.

With the local municipal court and the police department working in harmony the cleaning up of the city of undesirables is progressing rapidly.

Chicago papers are having a great time these days with their bank failures trying to trace who got the money and why.

On The Spur of The Moment

"Spending the Summer." I do not care for camping life, I have no joy for me. I hate to battle with the gay Mosquito and the flea. I cannot eat the halfburned food, Nor yet the food half raw; I cannot sleep inside a tent Upon a tick of straw.

I can't abide the punk hotels, They have at some resort. I do not like to wade in sand, I'm not a board walk sport. Resort hotel food is too slight; The Johnnies make me sick; The rocking chair batallions drives Me off at double quick.

I've looked the summer prospects over. I do not care to roam. I've got a cozy corner in porch; I guess I'll stay at home. It isn't all from choice with me, I may as well allow; You see, I haven't got the price, I can't go anyhow.

Table Don'ts. Don't try to eat spinach with a fork, for it will drip all over your shirt front. Eat it with a nose bag like a horse. Don't ask for a second half of spring chicken. The hostess always provides just enough to go around. Don't ask for it. Just scrape your plate assiduously with your fork and if there is any chicken left you will get it. Don't put chicken bones or potato skins in your pockets. This is not done in the best circles. I've got a cozy corner in porch; I guess I'll stay at home. It isn't all from choice with me, I may as well allow; You see, I haven't got the price, I can't go anyhow.

From the Hickeyville Clarion. Hank Tumms' wife says if he don't stop swatting flies he is going to break up their happy home entirely. He has broke up most of it already. Hank swats flies with a stick of store wood. He swats all day Sunday and only three out of a possible three million. Deacon Stubbs says the next time his wife does any fancy work he wishes she would take a needle cushion out'n the hammock and put it in the house where it belongs. The deacon sat down in the hammock in the dark last night, and he thought he had got into a vallerjacket's nest and the neighbors say he come mighty nigh forgetting for a few minutes that he was a deacon. Am Tilson's barber shop has been closed for three days. The Ladies Aid borrowed his razor to slice ham with for the social last Saturday night and nobody ain't brought it back yet. Am says there is a whole lot of skullduggery committed in the name of religion.

The Wait of the Swatter. I swatted one this morning; I swatted good and hard, The vicious twist Near broke my wrist; I'm battered up and scarred, When I did that swatting, Slipped on the hardwood floor. My woe's complete, From shelves I eat; Go to! I'll swat no more.

It seems like th' hardest thing I learn in this life is where your business ends an' somebody else's begins. If Roosevelt had gone t' Brazil, Indanny, he wouldn't want t' come back.

REV. NORMAN BARR TO PREACH SUNDAY

Supt. of Olivet Memorial Institute of Chicago to Talk at First Presbyterian Church.

The Rev. Norman G. Barr, superintendent of Olivet Memorial Institute of Chicago, will deliver the Sunday evening sermon at the First Presbyterian church. He believes that human life is the greatest asset of human society and that every life is worthy the best culture.

Olivet has put the religious statesmanship of the country deeply in its debt. Indirectly, Olivet has steered the thinking of many anxious Christian leaders who have perhaps never even heard its name.

Just at the time when the social settlement idea was beginning to take root in the United States, Olivet Institute was founded. At the time of its organization nearly everybody interested in that line of endeavor accepted as a self-evident fact, that no fraternal social service could be brought acceptably to the conglomerate populations of the great cities unless religion was altogether left out of account. It was deemed obvious that where religions were so many and so fiercely antagonistic, the only way to help all classes impartially was to be strictly neutral—non-committal about religion in any form. But Olivet was not governed by the logic of the situation. It went ahead on conviction rather than logic, and today not only Olivet itself but all the American church world has experience to attest that conviction.

Living and working in the midst of a community as heterogeneous as any American city can afford this brave and sturdy Presbyterian church, under its unfailing, devoted leader, Dr. Norman B. Barr, has done for its neighbors as much social service as the most effective of the non-religious settlements.

Worrying is a bad mental habit. There is only one cure and that is training oneself into good mental habits. To do this, persistence and patience are all needed. A week or a month is not likely to suffice. Keep at it just as you would train a vine to grow up instead of down.

STATE LAW WILL BE RIGIDLY ENFORCED BY CITY OFFICIALS

Launch Owners Will Do Well to Heed
Orders of Mayor as Regards Lights.

Mayor Fathers this afternoon issued an order that the owners of motor boats plying the Rock river would be given ten days to comply with the provisions of Section 1838-59, which provides for lights on motor boats. This provision provides that every boat, launch, vessel or other water craft propelled in whole or in part by steam, gas, gasoline, petroleum, naphtha fluid, electricity or other engine power, when being operated upon any waters under the exclusive jurisdiction of the state of Wisconsin, shall, from one hour after sunset, to one hour before sunrise, carry and keep continually lighted the following lights: On the bow or fore part a red and green light, the same to be visible from ahead and view and screened so that neither may be seen from the rear; and on the rear or stern of such boat, vessel or craft, a white light, not less than five nor more than twenty-five dollars for the first offense and not less than ten nor more than twenty-five dollars for each succeeding offense.

In explaining this order that the law be enforced Mayor Fathers says: "There have been so many near accidents reported on the river this summer that I deem it best to take what precaution we can under the law. I expect the launch owners will comply with the law and there will be no arrests for violators."

BIG MASS MEETING IS HELD AT MILTON

FARMERS AND BUSINESS MEN ATTEND. "GET-TOGETHER" SESSION LAST NIGHT.

PLAN AN ASSOCIATION

Men Prominent in Social Center, Equity and Marketing Movements Aid in Launching Rock County Organization.

(Special to the Gazette.) Milton, Wis., June 26.—A largely attended Mass Meeting of farmers, business men, educators, women, and students, was held last evening at the College Auditorium in this village. The purpose of the meeting was to arouse interest among farmers and other citizens of Rock County in a genuine "Get-together" movement of farmers, business men, teachers, club women, students, and others for the organization of what will be known as The Milton Equity Advancement Association. The purposes of this and other similar organizations is to establish in each rural community of Rock County stated in the articles of incorporation as follows:

1. To advance the agricultural, business, educational, and social development of each rural community in which a local branch may be organized.

2. To bring about, through the harmonious working together of farmers, business men, teachers, students, and other citizens, the selling of surplus farm products collectively and to secure for the same better prices and a more dependable demand, and to realize for each such rural community better soil, better crops, better markets, and better living conditions.

3. To bring to Farmers and Auxiliary members the marked advantages of membership in the American Society of Equity, local, state, and national, and of the Woman's Auxiliary to such Society.

4. To provide ample equipment in the way of a moving and stereopticon picture outfit for each local, and to make use of such equipment as to enable the people of each community, in a pleasant and agreeable way, to investigate and study for themselves the best known methods of producing farm products and also of preparing them for market, and of marketing the same to the best advantage of both producer and consumer.

5. So to make use of the moving and stereopticon picture outfit as to provide for the pupils of our schools a better, more attractive, more entertaining, and far more effective method of imparting useful information, not only in relation to agricultural and community problems, but also in coordination with the studies they pursue in school and college.

6. To provide for courses of lectures, moving picture entertainments, concerts, etc., both in the principal social and business center of each community dent members, $2.00, and Junior members, $1.00.

Members of the Association shall receive entertainment coupons equal in value of the amount paid by each one in dues and fees, each coupon to be worth two cents in payment of every five cents charged as admission to any entertainment held under the auspices of the Association. Thus by using the coupons a ten cent ticket would cost six cents, a fifteen cent ticket nine cents, etc.

During the evening several high grade moving pictures, agricultural, scientific, educational, and juvenile, were presented to show those present what would be the nature of the moving picture entertainments given frequently during the year by the Association at Milton, Milton Junction, and other outlying subcenters in nearby townships.

Members of the Milton High School Orchestra rendered several choice selections very acceptably during the evening. The president of the evening was former assemblyman, J. C. Barthol, who, in introducing the other speakers, emphasized the importance of the soil, a better knowledge of soils, better crops and better markets. The first two better things mentioned are fundamental to our successful agricultural development, he said, but cannot be fully realized until we have a complete soil survey of all our farm lands and a careful study by farmers of the facts thus shown regarding our soils.

The first speaker was Mr. E. J. Ward, Madison, President of the National Social Center Association. Mr. Ward is recognized throughout the country as the "father of the Social Center." He is the managing editor of the New Social Center Magazine, of which Miss Margaret Wilson is one of the editors. He cordially endorsed the "Get-together" idea that dominated the meeting and made an earnest plea for making our public school buildings in both country and city the common organic center for the community's activities, social, civic, economic; the forum for free discussion of all questions pertaining to the general welfare, a common meeting place where young and old can go to school to one another and when as a result we shall have a rightly mastered the problem of distribution and selling of our farm crops, the school house in the country may be made the place for economically collecting farm products and properly preparing and packing them for market, and the school house in the city may also be made the place for most economically distributing these products to the metropolitan consumer.

The plan of collecting farm products, sorting, grading and properly preparing them for market at country school houses is in operation in Denmark and with great success.

The next speaker was Mr. G. W. Conery, Madison, of the Wisconsin soil survey, who gave a very interesting description of soils, soil content, and soil values. He also explained the soil survey of the state as authorized by legislation, and brought to Rock county farmers the cheering message that the soil survey of this county will be begun the week of July 6th, and will be completed before the end of 1915. This important work will, in future years, be worth millions of dollars to Rock county. He also explained how farmers, in a practical way, can take advantage of the survey of farmlands. Mr. Conery will have charge of the work in this county.

Dr. Charles McCarthy, of Madison, who has made several trips abroad to study co-operative marketing methods in vogue in various European countries, and is regarded as the leading authority in America on this subject, gave a very lucid and interesting address. He strongly urged the standardizing of farm products, which means the raising and proper preparation for market of highest quality goods of uniform type, officially inspected and guaranteed, entitled to and bearing a common brand. Farm products of this kind will always be in demand and at top notch prices. Among other things Mr. McCarthy said:

"In relation to marketing farm products, too much care cannot be given to producing the proper products direct from producer to consumer. I mean those that will command the highest price are those desired by the consumer, and will yield the greatest profit to the producer. Surely every wideawake farmer is looking for the 'highest price' and 'greatest profit,' and there is just one way for our farmers to get what all are looking for. Organize, get together, learn just how to produce highest quality, standardized goods, and buyers desiring such goods will find you and pay you the coveted 'highest price,' yielding you the greatest profit. Through intelligent co-operation and regulated marketing, the farmers of Holland and Denmark realize more than 50 per cent of the dollar which the consumer pays, while in the United States realize less than 50 per cent of what the consumer pays."

He urged his hearers to get together under the Equity banner and solve their marketing problems as their brothers across the sea have so successfully done.

In interview after the meeting Dr. McCarthy said: "You have a great country and fine people—lots of them. The 'Get-together' plan your people are working out here is absolutely logical. All you've got to do is to stick to it, and you'll win."

The results of this "Get-together" mass meeting at Milton clearly show that Rock county people are waking up to the importance of the marketing and rural welfare problems. They are evidently united in the opinion that, in both country and city, voluntary investigation and study of conditions and better methods by all interested in obtaining the right solution of these questions, must precede any adequate working system of direct marketing, and before such study and investigation can be accomplished, organization must be brought about both in country and city. Let corresponding groups thus be organized, and the people themselves will find the right solution of the marketing problem. These good things are not going to be brought to the people on a silver platter, ready to take. Like gold they must be dug for and they will be vastly more valuable, for they mean collective power, power to achieve the truly worth while things in life, both for the individual and the community. In achieving this result, the printing press and the moving picture, working in unison and in close relationship with our schools, will prove most potent factors in reaching a happy solution of the marketing problem and the promotion of community welfare in both country and city.

NEWVILLE

Newville, June 26.—Lee Alder made a business trip in regard to a bridge contract yesterday.

On Wednesday afternoon, June 24, a very pretty wedding occurred at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ben Cooper, when their daughter, Edith, was united in marriage with George H. Sherman. Promptly at five o'clock to the strains of the wedding march played by Miss Lillian Cooper, sister of the bride, the bride and groom took their places beneath an arch of ferns and roses in the parlor, where Rev. Gregory of Bigerton read the service which made them man and wife, the beautiful ring ceremony being used. The bride wore a beautiful white dress and carried a bouquet of bride's roses.

After congratulations a dainty three-course dinner was served by the Misses Lillian Cooper, Ruth Richardson and Mildred Wilman under the direction of Mrs. Kraeger, the table being decorated with ferns and carnations.

Shortly after six o'clock the happy couple left by auto for Janesville where they expected to get a train for Chicago to spend their honeymoon.

The bride is a graduate of the Edgerton high school and for the past three years has taught school successfully, while the groom is engaged in the cement contracting business. They are both very popular young people and we are glad to announce they expect to make their home in this community. Some very nice presents were left to remind them of the occasion.

Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Marsden of Albion Prairie, Mr. and Mrs. Messmer of Sumner, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Wilman and daughter, Mildred of Milton Junction, and Mr. and Mrs. George Richardson and daughter, Ruth; Mr. and Mrs. F. B. Sherman, Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Sherman, and Casper Sherman, all of Newville.

La Prairie, June 26.—There will be preaching services at 10:30 in the morning and at eight o'clock in the evening at the La Prairie chapel Sunday. Good music will be furnished. Rev. O. W. Walz, Nazarene minister.

If we work upon marble, it will perish. If we work upon brass, time will efface it. If we rear temples, they will crumble into dust. But if we work upon immortal souls, if we imbue them with principles, with the just fear of God and love of fellow men, we engrave on those tablets something which will brighten to all eternity.—Daniel Webster.

The Hotpoint Electric Iron

It's the iron with the hot point, necessary because the point, always shoved forward into the damp goods, loses most heat, and therefore needs most heat supplied to it. Another important feature original with the Hot Point Iron is the attached stand, which eliminates lifting, and upon which the Iron is easily tipped.

No pad is ever needed, for the handle is always cool, and this is one of the evidences that the electric heat is applied only where needed and not wasted.

Its plug and cord are interchangeable among many other appliances, a feature of convenience and economy.

Thorough satisfaction and durability are assured by the fact that its Heating Element is guaranteed for ten years. The price of the Hotpoint Iron is $3.50

WOMAN'S PAGE

The Evening Chit-Chat

BY RUTH CAMERON

"THE whole world," said David Starr Jordan, "stands aside for the man who knows whether he is going."

That means for the man who finds out what he wants, fits himself to have it and then asks for it.

The last of these steps may seem at first thought the least important, but it is not. There are some men who ask for what they want and then do nothing. There are others who fit themselves for what they want and then do nothing. There are still others who fit themselves for what they want and then ask for it. These are the men who succeed.

A young man who for three years had wanted to go on the road finally plucked up courage to ask his employer to give him a chance as salesman. "We've been thinking for the last two or three years that you might make good at that job," his employer said. "Why didn't you give me a chance?" he cried. "I have been wild for it."

"Because we thought if you had any inclination that way you'd ask for it," his employer answered. "A man who is going to be a salesman has to be able to ask for what he wants, you know. It's an aggressive job."

Do you remember Mrs. Haukebe's advice to the young man who thought he had to stay in an under the able post the rest of his life because the government did not offer him a better position? "How am I to get out of it?" he questioned when she reproached him.

How? In a hundred and fifty years. Ask, my dear sir, ask! Look! There is young Huxley with six years' service and not half your talents. He asked for what he wanted and got it. There's McArthurson, who has come to his present position by asking, sheer, downright asking, after he has pushed himself out of the rank and file. Do you suppose men are chosen for their appointments because of their special fitness beforehand? You have all passed a high test in the beginning, and excepting the three or four who have come altogether to the head you can all work. Asking does the rest. Call it cheek, call it insolence, call it anything you like but ask! Men argue that a man by the mere audacity of his request must have some good in him. A weak man doesn't say "Give me this and that."

Even in the New Testament, in which meekness and humility are so exalted, we are urged to ask for what we want. Not to wait in patient passivity, mind you, but to "ask and it shall be given you; seek and ye shall find; knock and it shall be opened unto you."

The whole world stands aside for the man who knows whether he is going, and what is more, the whole world helps him on his way.

Every Day Talks To Every Day People

(BY FRANCES JOYCE KENNEDY.)

If you can stay inside your husband's income, despite its size, and save a little, too; if you can smile when all your world seems tumbling—cheer up! a medal is being cast for you.

If you can rise and start the family washing, and turn the wringer with a happy song; if you can get up without aches and aching joints, your family's chance for happiness is strong.

If you can put the flatirons on at morning, and iron on until it's nearly noon; if you can serve the dinner and keep smiling, cheer up, you really are some good man's boon.

If you can bake bread, pies, cakes, biscuits, cookies; if you can make delicious shortcake too; if you can fry a steak without destruction; cheer up! this country has great need of you.

If you can sew a little gown or trousers; if you can mend a great unsightly rent; if you can keep on darning without darning; cheer up—for you are heaven sent.

If you can answer fifty-seven questions; while brushing half a dozen little heads; if you can start them off

Heart and Home

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) Will you please give me the recipes for cornstarch beads and rose beads? How are the rose beads made? How are the cornstarch beads made? (2) How can I make a pinkish red color for beads? (3) Are cloths strung lengthwise or through the round part? (4) Are these beads still worn much? PEGGIE.

BEADS. (1) Rose beads—A simple way to make them is to take a piece of string and tie it in a knot. Then take a small piece of cloth and tie it around the knot. This will make a bead. (2) Cornstarch beads—Take a cup of cornstarch and a cup of water. Mix them together and let them stand for a few hours. Then take a small piece of cloth and tie it around the mixture. This will make a bead. (3) Pinkish red color—Take a small piece of red cloth and tie it around the mixture. This will make a pinkish red color. (4) Strung lengthwise or through the round part?—Strung lengthwise. (5) Are these beads still worn much?—Yes, they are.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl of nineteen and am keeping company with a young man of twenty. He wants me to marry him next month. I would rather wait another year. What is best? ANXIOUS.

I think you are wise to wait. I would wait until he is at least twenty-one.

Cream Cake

Inquiries among a large number of women using "The Cook's Book" showed this to be their favorite cake recipe. It is easy to make, certain to turn out well if K. C. Baking Powder is used, and may be put together with almost any filling or icing.

K. C. Cream Cake

By Mrs. Janet McKenzie Hill, Editor of the Boston Cooking School Magazine.

One-half cup butter; 1 cup sugar; 2 eggs, beaten; 1/2 cup sifted flour; 2 level teaspoons K. C. Baking Powder; 1/2 cup cold water; whites of 2 eggs, beaten dry.

Cream the butter; add the sugar, yolks of eggs and water; then the flour, sifted three times with the baking powder. Beat the whites of eggs. Bake in two or three layers; put these together with cream filling, and dredge the top with confectioner's sugar.

Cream Filling

One-fourth cup sifted flour; 1 egg; 1/2 cup hot milk; 1/2 cup sugar; 1 teaspoonful vanilla extract; 1 ounce chocolate.

Mix flour and salt with a very little cold milk; stir into the hot milk and cook ten minutes; add the chocolate and stir until melted and evenly blended with the flour mixture, then beat in the egg mixed with the sugar, and lastly the vanilla.

You need the K. C. Cook's Book, containing this and 89 other delicious recipes—sent free upon receipt of the colored card attached in every 25-cent can of K. C. Baking Powder. Send to the Jaquet Mfg. Co., Chicago.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl of sixteen.

(1) I am keeping company with a boy of eighteen. I loved him at first, but my parents objected to it. I don't know what to do. (2) I have a pinkish red dress. What way should I make it? (3) What kind of slippers should I wear with it? (4) What is a good remedy to remove freckles? (5) Should I attend public dances? (6) My knuckles are very large. What way can I reduce them? (7) Should a girl of sixteen wear corsets? (8) You will love more than one boy at first sight before you are twenty years old, my dear. Better when he will be of age and probably have more sense and know better what he really wants. However, if he is able to support a wife now, if you love each other truly and his parents give their consent, it might be all right to marry now.

CHOPPING MEAT.

Chopping meat to make it tender permits quick and economical cooking. In broiling chopped meat it is well to remember that there is no reason why it should not be cooked like the best and most expensive tenderloin. The broiler should be even more carefully greased than for a whole steak. This makes it possible to form the balls or cakes of chopped meat with very little pressure without running the risk of having them pulled to pieces by adhering to the wires of the broiler. They should be heated on both sides even more quickly than the steak, because the chopping has provided more ways of escape for the juice, and their openings should be sealed as soon as possible. The interior should be cooked to the taste of the family, just as the steak is.

Chopped raw meat of almost any kind can be very quickly made into a savory dish by cooking it with water or with water and milk for a short time, then thickening with butter and flour, and adding different seasonings. Such a dish may be made to go further by serving it on toast or with a border of rice, or in some similar way.

Cannelon of beef is prepared by making chopped beef into a roll and baking it wrapped in a buttered paper, a method designed to keep in the steam and so insure a moist, tender dish. The paper must be removed before serving. The roll should be basted occasionally with butter and water or drippings and water. In preparing the roll an egg may be added for each pound and a half of meat, and chopped parsley, onion juice, lemon peel or finely chopped green peppers make good seasoning. A thickened gravy may be made from the drippings, the liquid used being either water or tomato juice.

Strips of pork laid on the roll may be substituted for the buttered paper and basting.

Careful cooking aids in developing the natural flavor of some of the cheaper cuts, and browning also brings out flavors agreeable to most palates. Except in the case of roasts, browning for flavor is usually accomplished by heating the meat in a frying pan in fat which has been tried out of pork or in suet or butter. Care should be taken that the fat is not scorched, as the chief reason for the bad opinion in which fried food is held by many is that it almost always means eating burned fat. Fat in itself is a very valuable food, but when burned it is most unpalatable and indigestible.

FASHION SETTLED ON SUMMER WAISTS

Enrolling Days Require Light Clothes and Dainty Frock. (By Margaret Mason.)

New York, June 26.—Leaping lightly from blouse to masque butterfly, Fashion has now settled on a type of waist which hangs loosely from the shoulders to the hips, and is a regular dressing jacket. One model especially of flesh color crepe de chine hangs from a square cut neck edged with a tiny ruffling of plaid pick rib. It is tucked in at the waistline and then flares out in a ruffling, edged flounce to the ankles. The elbow sleeves are tucked down half way to fluff out loosely over the elbow with the inevitable ruffling.

Truly an idle negligee for home use these broiling days, the uninitiated would exclaim, but it's not, nay, on the home stuff. This little pink and pretty confection is intended to wear out among the gaudy and gaudy, and is a regular proposition for a poor girl these days to decide whether she's undressed to go out or dressed to stay in.

Others of the models do conceal more to the conventions and assume indications of a girlish or sash loosely hanging about the hips to save them from a too exact resemblance to a coming jacket. The most approved of these hangs from the shoulders in a loose cascade effect, buttoned down the front and girdled about the hips with a wide crumpled sash of silk, guileless of bow or ends. From this hangs either a flounce of lace or silk, the straight skirt underneath falling to the ankles. However, the gentle effect is ludicrously like a little girl's frock worn over a grownup's petticoat. Out of the frying pan of the dressing sacque hangs into the fire of a child's dress similarity seems to be the unescapable stigma of this newest mode, but in spite of this it is being flaunted numerously by the smartest dressers.

As for basques they are simply basking in popular fancy for the moment. Already they are creeping closer and tighter to the figure and corsetiers do say that a return of the bourgeois figure and a rediscovery of the sixteen inch waistline is almost a certainty.

It was clench to let out waists, but heavens, you can't help shuddering over the inevitable struggles there will be to call 'em in again. There's a perfect craze for jet again in the dress trimming for street and daytime wear. Particularly in the

Peggy & Company

As a Moonlight Performer, Peggy Shows Amazing Finesse.

Whenever Peggy meets a strange young man she uses a most delicious planissimo in repeating his name—a tone that never fails to rack the anxious breast of adolescent manhood.

Then she has a way of resting her gaze on a level with his tie and never raising it. This always gets results. It is a sort of silent maidenly coyness that arouses the interest of any college freshman, however bored and debonair.

So it was that Peggy met the pleasant young man of the realtor. She was gratified to note the surpassing superiority of his dress. His tie was a symphony of vividly mingled and extremely fashionable hues. His flannel trousers were short enough to disclose a glimpse of green silk socks, very modish.

Moreover, the young man revealed surprising conversational gifts. He had just finished his first year at college—we knew it! And he twitched to relate all that there befell him. He was eager to impress Peggy with his many charming attainments. Sheltered from the moonbeams by the vines of the Brown veranda, Peggy smiled a smile of sweet tranquility as she listened to the young man droned.

What the careless joyousness of youth! What are the potentialities of life, its caroling cares, its bitter strife, to two such merry sprites as these? Risk to the very dregs, dear youth, all the blessedness of life's sweet moments. Sit gaily along thy primrose paths, plucking the fragrant flowers while ye may.

This young man, alas, despite his dazzling tie and stylish socks, was some day to perform in life's cruel struggle. And Peggy, pretty addlepated Peggy, shall happily find a mate and devote herself to the unromantic task of keeping down the grocery bill.

form of fringe for the edging of basques, capes and parasols. Basque buttons are also very smart of jet. Both in the fringes and the banding trimmings tubular effects have replaced in novelty the old ribbon jet beads and sequins. What an appropriate carrying out of the aquatic idea it is for a lady whose hair is done in a "waterfall" to appear in a costume all jetty. The waterfall of hair surmounts the head and flows down the forehead along with all other Victorian fashions. With soft curls bobbing in front of each ear and caught up in a loose knot behind there is no denying this costume is vastly more becoming than the universal peeled effect of the nonce.

And germane to the subject of hair-dress adornment is the fact that no torque of the acquisition were any worse than those endured by fragile flowers of femininity today when they cheerfully submit their heads for five and six hours to the slow suffering of having a permanent wave baked in their hair.

Of course it is done by electricity and the wave is guaranteed for one year. In this joyous season of ocean bathing the damsel cursed with sleek straight locks becomes a martyr to let the ocean have anything on her in the nature of waves. She lies herself to the hairdresser's and with Spartan fortitude has a wave put in her hair, a crimp in her bank roll and a kink in her nerves all at the very same sitting.

Household Hint

THINGS WORTH KNOWING.

Berries should never be hulled until just before the meal; otherwise they lose much of their freshness and taste. Never keep pastry in the ice box, as it soon becomes soggy.

A wet towel spread over the top of the ice box, before the lid is closed, will keep out the hot air, and lessen the ice bill.

All acid drinks, such as lemonade or fruit punch, should never be mixed or served in a metal pitcher. Use a glass or china one.

THE TABLE.

Baked Tenderloin of Pork—Take two strips of tenderloin of pork and wipe clean with a damp cloth. Make a stuffing of butter, crumbs, highly flavored with onion, sage, pepper, salt and melted butter, with milk or melted butter to moisten. Place stuffing between the two tenderloins, tie all together and bake in a moderate oven until done. Baste often with melted butter.

Sweetbread, Country Style—Parboil sweetbreads, sprinkle with salt and pepper and dredge in flour. Arrange in a baking dish, brush over with melted butter, allowing two tablespoonsfuls to each pair of sweetbreads, and cover with thin slices of salt pork. Bake in a hot oven over twenty-five minutes, basting twice during the cooking, and remove the pork during the last five minutes of the cooking.

Boiled Pudding—This is an English pudding and is very good. One cupful of flour, two tablespoonsfuls of butter, half a cupful of sugar, one egg, one teaspoonful of baking powder and a little lemon juice. Rub the butter into the dry ingredients, add the well beaten egg and a little milk, if the batter is very stiff. Butter a pudding mold, put a large spoonful of any jam in the bottom and pour in the batter. Season for one hour.

Orange Fritters—An excellent orange fritter, suitable either for luncheon or for dessert, for dinner, may be made by adding to the plain fritter batter an extra egg and extra sugar, the grated peel of one orange and half a cupful of candied orange peel. This should be served with a hot orange sauce made from the juice and peel of another orange, two tablespoonsful of butter, one cup of sugar and one tablespoonful of cornstarch should be thoroughly blended, the grated peel added with one cup of boiling water. Cook until it is clear and then turn in the strained juice of the orange. When this is slightly cold add to it a cup of thick, rich cream which has been whipped dry and serve with the fritters.

Caked Easter Pudding—Separate the yolks from the whites of four eggs, beat them well separately and throw them in a basin together, then mix them very gradually with six or eight ounces of flour and a pinch or two of salt. Make the batter of the proper consistency by adding a little more than one pint of good milk. Bake in a butter dish for three-quarters of an hour in a quick oven. This pudding is much improved by careful mixing. If the eggs, flour and milk are not well blended together the pudding is often a failure.

HEAVY RAINS DELAY WORK ON HIGHWAYS

CONTRACTORS FORCED TO POSTPONE CONSTRUCTION UNTIL FAVORABLE WEATHER.

ROADS IN BAD SHAPE

Several Pieces of Highway Are Impassable as Result of Recent Storms.—Hold Up Milton Avenue Job.

Heavy rains of the past week have seriously delayed the construction work on the county and state highway system, and contractors have been forced to suspend operations entirely in some instances. Not only has it been necessary to postpone the building work but the excess of rainfall has made the roads in some places impassable, and it will take several weeks of drying weather before conditions will again be normal.

Owing to the wet weather Highway Commissioner C. E. Moore instructed Britt & Finley not to tear up the stretch of Milton avenue in the town of Harmony which will be rebuilt, and the traveled portion of this highway remains in good condition for traffic, although the sides of the road have been prepared for grading. The contractors have transferred their operations to the Milton-Edgerton road.

Further north on Milton avenue, on the Milton Junction branch, in the town of Milton, work has been started, however, and while the conditions are not as bad as in some places, it will be well for motorists to avoid this stretch. Contractor Wileman has the job.

At least two stretches of road in the county are impassable—the Janesville-Edgerton road in the town of Fulton, and the Evansville-Edgerton road, both of which were badly affected by the rains. The first mentioned road should have been finished by Contractor McGeevick this week had the weather conditions been favorable. The Evansville-Edgerton road is in particularly bad shape owing to the cuts and fills, which have to be made, requiring an unusual amount of work. Contractor McGeevick will start operations on the east side river road, between Janesville and Beloit just below Yost's Park, in the town of Beloit. Owing to this cuts and fills which will be made this road will be closed to traffic for several weeks. The road on the west side is in good condition, however, and is recommended for the use of motorists. Myers and Carr have finished the Madison road in the town of Beloit, and this highway is now in excellent condition. They have started resurfacing a mile of highway on the Monroe road in the same township, but resurfacing will be much more hindrance to traffic, and where resurfacing is being done motorists will meet but little trouble.

Finley & Townsend have finished the Footville-Brown road in Spring Valley, and will begin work on the Orfordville-Newark road, just south of Orfordville. There are a number of bad cuts and fills in this stretch of work.

Hughes & Perry have completed the Alton and Brooklyn roads north of Evansville, and the gravel is well packed and ready for travel. This firm expects to start their job on the Mineral Point road, just west of the city, on Monday.

Work near Clinton on the Milwaukee and Bergen roads is progressing rapidly and with little impediment to traffic of any sort. There has been traffic to rain in this part of the county compared with other sections, so the weather has caused but little delay in the work. The Emerald Grove-Avalon road is being resurfaced.

Dan Drey was awarded the contract this week for building three miles of crushed rock, water bound macadam highway in the town of Porter, on the Janesville-Evansville road, at $1.10 a yard. He will begin in three weeks.

On Wednesday evening, while Dr. Purdy was reading the grass and other rubbish out of the ditch at the side of the road in front of his residence, he discovered something of a metallic kind, and upon investigation found it to be a gold-filled case. The time-piece was a gold-filled case, with high grade movement which, upon inquiry, proved to be the property of Nile Heskard and had been lost for about two months. In spite of the fact that it had laid in the mud and water for this length of time the watch, upon being wound, commenced to run with as much regularity as though it had escaped its accustomed place in the owner's pocket.

Mrs. Wesley Jones returned home from Wesley Memorial hospital on Wednesday evening, where she has been spending the past three weeks. Her many friends are pleased at the prospect of her rapid and complete recovery.

Balloon As Engine of War Makes First Appearance 120 Years Ago

One hundred and twenty years ago today the balloon made its first successful appearance as an engine of war. It was at the battle of Fleurus during the French Revolution. It was this balloon that enabled the revolutionists to win the battle and subsequently establish the French republic.

At sunrise of this day the huge slitten bag, inflated with hydrogen, was tugging at its anchor ropes in the French republican camp. The opening of the battle was a signal for General Morlot to climb into the basket.

The soldiers slowly let the cable until the balloon, and aeronaut, rose high above the enemy's lines in full view. While the balloon gently juddered in the breeze, Morlot drew a sketch of the enemy's strategic position, and then tossed it overboard in a heavy bagbedecked package. "Toss every move of the foe was reported to the commander-in-chief on the ground below during the ten hours in which the balloon remained aloft.

The commander's questions, written out and attached to a cord that hung from the balloon, were hauled up by the aeronaut and quickly answered. The idea of using a balloon in warfare had been conceived, but not used twelve years before the siege of Gibraltar.

At that time Joseph Montgolfier, who later made the world's first successful passenger-carrying balloon, proposed "to introduce into Gibraltar an entire army, which, borne by the wind and a gas, will enter right above the heads of the enemy." But the siege was raised before the idea could be demonstrated.

Today airships constitute one of the most important factors in modern warfare. All the great world-powers have equipped their armies with fleets of aeroplanes and dirigible balloons, and scientists are bending every energy toward inventing new explosives and perfecting means of hauling them from the clouds with greater accuracy. Some authorities even predict that the next great war will be fought in the clouds by squadrons of airships.

Today American aviators are scouting over the Mexican lines around Vera Cruz, and are demonstrating their marvelous utility. Equipped with the latest devices the ultra-modern army scout can fly over the enemy's country, sketch or photograph the topography of the landscape, the forts, cities and troop positions. By wireless telegraph he can send back the information to his headquarters miles away. With the modern rapid fire gun he can defeat himself with a stream of bullets. Or he can drop explosives from his lofty craft, scattering death wherever it strikes. A year ago it was reported a Mexican rebel aeronaut dropped a bomb that killed fifty-two soldiers instantly. If it is right, the aeronaut can drop a star bomb that explodes and shades a lasting and radiant light on the spot he is hovering over. To escape from the new aerial guns designed to fight airships, the modern aeronaut can drop the new German bomb that spreads a dense, heavy pall of smoke between earth and airship and thus permit the aviator to escape. Or he can drop another kind which gives off a poisonous gas capable of killing every living thing within 100 yards.

Had Lung Trouble and Expected to Die

With the civilized world anxiously seeking a specific for Lung Trouble, the number of recoveries brought about by Eckman's Alternative has grown steadily. A medicine for Throat and Lung Trouble is attracting universal attention. For fifteen years Eckman's Alternative has been used and the reports of recoveries in many supposed hopeless cases indicate that this medicine is doing a vast amount of good. Read this:

"Gentlemen: I was taken sick in November, 1908, with a very bad cold and dizzy spells. The doctor then pronounced my case as Malaria Fever. I grew steadily worse. Had two consultations held over me, and the verdict was that the case was hopeless, only gave me two months to live. My physician had tried most all kinds of treatment and none did me any good, so he asked my husband if he objected to him trying a proprietary medicine. So I began on your Alternative. I was in bed from November 30, 1908, until February 25, 1909, and was thought dying several times. Today I am healthier and stronger than ever."

The Lapse of Enoch Wentworth

By
ISABEL GORDON CURTIS
Author of "The Woman from Wisconsin"
Illustrations by Ellsworth Young

Copyright, 1914, by W. C. Brown & Co.

Dorcas pulled away from his clasping hand and ran to her dressing-room. She was choking with sobs. She felt her fingers tingle where Andrew had touched them, and there was a look of terror in her eyes.

Alice Volk sat waiting for her in the dressing-room. Little Julie jumped to her feet when Dorcas entered. The girl did not speak, but clasped the child to her bosom.

"Alice," she whispered, "help me to dress as soon as you can. And Julie, ask Dugald to get a carriage. I want to go home."

The woman kissed the girl's neck as she unbuttoned her gown. "It has been an awful strain. I know all about it—but Miss Dorcas, your future is made."

The child returned in a minute. "Mr. Wentworth has a carriage ordered. Dugald says will you go with him?"

"No," cried Dorcas; "tell Dugald I'll be ready in ten minutes. I am going home alone."

Merry stood waiting at the stage entrance when she went out. He had heard Julie deliver the message. "Good night, Miss Dorcas," he said. "Sleep well. Remember, everything is all right. I owe it to you, I owe you more than you understand. You made good tonight; the papers will tell you so in the morning. Good night. God bless you!"

"Good night." The girl shivered for a moment. It was intensely cold, and she drew a fur coat close to her chin. The cabman drove quickly, for the streets were empty of vehicles. Along Broadway the theaters were dark.

Jason stood waiting to open the door when the girl ran up the steps. His dusky old face was one grin of delight. He had just returned from the theater and was growing impatient for the triumph of a homecoming.

"Missy," he cried, "yo' cert'ly done us proud. My soul! I couldn't er' believed de baby I toted years en' years ago ud ebber a' lived to not es fine ez yo' done. I used to play y' don' yo' black mule. I reckon y' don' member, honey, ridin' mule on ol' Uncle Jason's back, do yo'?"

"Yo' was, honey, a-workin' me up till I 'lar to goodness I mos' cried my ol' eyes out. When Marce Enoch come out en' made dat speech folkses holered en' got to der feet c'applin' en' bangin' sticks on de floor, I 'lar to de Lawd dar wa'n't a prouder ol' ducky in New York den Uncle Jason."

Dorcas began to laugh and cry at once.

"I don' wonder yo's all done up, Missy. I's got de fines' supper ready fo' yo' yo' ebber see."

Dorcas was too unnerved to eat. She swallowed a cup of coffee and nibbled at the good things Jason had prepared. Then she went upstairs and began to undress. She brushed her hair, plaited it in two long braids, and slipped into a gray kimono, which folded itself about her in shabby waves. The coffee had driven sleep away. She tossed a shawl about her shoulders and ran down through the silent house to the library. Wentworth often read there until long after midnight, and a coal fire was burning brightly.

She pushed an armchair close to the hearth and dropped into it wearily. She realized that she was very tired. She had not thought of nerves or body during the long weeks of rehearsal, with the incessant study, the multitude of detail, and the strange irregularity of life.

She began to live over again the last few hours and drew a long breath as she remembered the strangling terror which laid hold of her before she made her first entrance. When she heard her cue she felt dumb, crippled, almost blind for an moment. The smile on Zilla Paget's face, as she stepped from the wings, stung her into action.

There was "scorn" in it, and crudely smoothed over by a sweet, beguiling peridy, which aroused in the girl a sudden hate that she had never felt in her life before. The hatred made her forget everything except her part.

The recollection of a bit of gossip had flashed to her memory: Zilla Paget had prophesied that her "Cordelia" would be a dead failure. Before the end of that second act the intense loathing and scorn which Merry had put into her lines became real. The woman understood. She shrank with a terror which was scarcely simulated during the girl's denunciation of a mother who had lost all claim upon a child for love or respect. Seven times the curtain rose and fell upon the two women. Once a volley of hisses was hurled at Zilla Paget, and she smiled in happy triumph. Oswald and Merry stood in the wings watching the act. The intensity which Dorcas threw into her part stirred both men strongly, as it did the audience. They had anticipated womanly sweetness and tenderness, but they had not gauged her emotion to the depths.

"I never dreamed she could do anything like this," said Oswald slowly. Merry did not speak. He had caught Zilla Paget's subtle smile. He knew there was more than acting in the scene.

While Dorcas sat gazing into the red caves of the coal fire she went over each situation in the play, step by step. Once she buried her face in the folds of her shawl; her cheeks were throbbing hotly. She felt Merry's kiss burn upon her lips. There had been no real kisses at rehearsal. The trust and love and gratitude with which the broken old convict turned to his child seemed real for a moment; she felt it when the actor touched her lips. Then she had fallen sobbing into his arms. She heard the audience sob with her. When she turned to glance aside through half-blinded eyes, she met the derisive smile of Zilla Paget, who stood in the wings. There was jealousy in her scorn. Her part was over for the night; she was dead to people in front. They had forgotten her, in spite of the applause she had won a half hour before. It hurt her vanity.

Dorcas came out of her reverie with a start. The door behind her closed, and Enoch walked in. His face was glowing with eager, impetuous triumph, his cheeks were flushed, and his eyes shone. He stooped suddenly to kiss his sister. She did not speak. It seemed years since she had seen him in such a mood.

"Dorcy," he cried, "why did you rush home? Everybody was waiting to congratulate you. You lifted people off their feet; I swear, you took me off mine! The critics went wild over you and wanted to interview you. Tomorrow you'll be the talk of the town."

Everything that had blurred life seemed to vanish. It was wonderful that in a few hours the dreams of a lifetime should have come true. The girl laughed. Her heart had suddenly grown light.

"Enoch, I cannot make myself believe it."

He stood beside her with a proud smile upon his lips. "Dorcy, you're a queer proposition. Any other girl would have had her head turned by the triumph tonight. Why, child, in three hours you climbed straight onto a pedestal that many women work half a lifetime to reach. Even then they often miss it."

Enoch bent and lifted her face till her eyes looked into his. "There were minutes," he said fondly, "when I actually questioned whether it was the little sister herself or not."

Dorcas had never seen her brother so strangely excited. She wondered for a moment if he had been drinking, but she saw it was the intoxication of sudden success, not of wine. He paced about the library, talking, laughing, building a thousand plans for the future. The girl watched him curiously. It was a strange transition from the sullen silence of months. The Enoch of light-hearted boyhood days had returned.

"You have a great future, Dorcy," he stopped abruptly and his voice grew grave. "There is one thing I want to say. Don't," he hesitated and began to pace the room again, as if choosing his words carefully, "don't make a hero of Merry. He did well tonight. I have seen him set the whole town talking as he did in 'Esterbrook,' then topple back and go down, away down."

Dorcas rose from her chair and tossed the long braids of hair over her shoulders. Her eyes and cheeks were

"Dorcy, you're a queer proposition," blazed. Wentworth's face grew intolerable. "Enoch," she cried, "how dare you say such a thing—to me?"

"What do you mean?" "You know what I mean!" He saw her chin tremble. In spite of her anger she was on the verge of tears. "When people are calling for the author, how did you dare to go out and take the applause? Have you no conscience, no honor left?"

"Merry got as much applause as one man could stand." He looked at her with dogged defiance. "That makes you none the less—a thief!"

Enoch did not answer. He pulled a cigar from his vest pocket, lit it, and began to smoke. He did not flinch before his sister's gaze.

"I should have been the happiest girl in the world tonight, almost foolishly happy." There was a pitiful quaver in her voice. "I feel now as if I were disgraced. Men have gone to the penitentiary for stealing—less than you did."

Wentworth laughed scornfully. He tossed his cigar into the heart of the fire and turned upon Dorcas in sudden rage. "Stealing is not a nice word."

"It is nice enough for what has happened."

"Do you know," asked Wentworth with grave deliberation, "what did happen? Has Merry ever taken you into his confidence about this transaction?"

"Merry has never said one word against you—to me."

"Then reserve your judgment until he does. If you were to ask him, and if he played fair, he would tell you that it was a straight, honest bargain, a bargain bought and paid and signed for. Merry, with all his failings, is no wretched."

"Bought and paid and signed for?" repeated the girl in slow bewilderment. "How could you buy and pay for something conceived by another man's brain and written by another man's hand?"

"That is my business, wholly," answered Enoch coldly. "It is an affair no woman would understand." He paused to light another cigar; then he turned to Dorcas with such authority as he had never used to her before. "I want to say one thing before you leave this room. It is about the question of the authorship of this play. It is not to be brought up again at any time between us. Do you understand?"

"I understand," Dorcas answered quietly. "I understand it is perfectly useless to appeal to a conscience which is dead."

Enoch shrugged his shoulders. "If that is the way you choose to put it, well and good. It seems to me a pity that you cannot drop this altogether and—forget. The future looks bright for both of us. We could easily go back to our old happy life if you would."

Dorcas moved toward the door. "I cannot forget. I promise you one thing, Enoch, I will never speak of it again." "Thank you," said the man brusquely.

CHAPTER XV.
Master Robin Tully.

When the curtain dropped on the last act at a Saturday matinee, Dorcas paused on the way to her dressing-room and glanced out at the stage door. Rain was lashing the street in furious, wild-blown torrents. The few people who braved the storm bent their heads against it and plodded on with determination. Nearby, a street organ was wheezing the "Miserere" in pitiful appeal to a heedless crowd at the theater door.

Dorcas returned to her dressing-room. It was a delightfully cozy retreat—Mr. Oswald had seen to that. Alice Volk sat repairing a gown.

"Where's Julie?" Dorcas demanded. "She's asleep in our dressing-room." The girl seated herself in front of the mirror and began to remove her make-up. At intervals she glanced over a bunch of letters which lay on the dressing table.

"I used to wonder how it would feel to be famous. Of course I am not famous yet," said Dorcas quickly; "I am merely one of the people you hear of in passing. Still, I cannot grow accustomed to the queer experience of seeing my name blazoned on every house-top when I ride on the L, or finding my picture in papers and magazines. People stop on the street to stare at me; occasionally they whisper my name to some one who is with them. A girl I went to school with wrote the other day and asked for sixteen autographed portraits to give as favors at a party. She was a rich child, and at school she snubbed me unmercifully."

That Weak Back

accompanied by pain here or there—extreme nervousness, sleeplessness—may be faint signs—or symptoms—all are signals of distress for a woman. She may be growing from girlhood into womanhood—passing from womanhood to motherhood—or later suffering from that change into middle life which leaves so many wrecks of women. At any or all of these periods of a woman's life she should take a tonic and nerve prescribed for just such cases by a physician of vast experience in the diseases of women.

has successfully treated more cases in past forty years than any other known remedy. It can now be had in sugar-coated, tablet form as well as in the liquid. Sold by medicine dealers or trial box by mail on receipt of 50 cents in stamps.

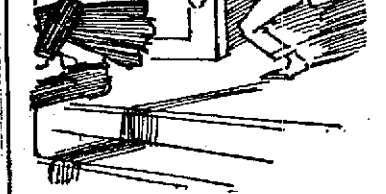

Miss Elizabeth Iordahl of Berkeley, Cal., in a recent letter to Dr. Pierce said: "I was completely broken down in health, I was suffering and had pains all over my body and was so nervous that I could scarcely get to sleep. I had been cured by Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. I have never had an occasion to consult a physician since—am in excellent health."

Dinner Stories

"Say, Mr. Dunham," remarked the head of the firm, "have you collected that bill of Smith's?"

"Have I collected it?" replied Collector Dunham. "I called at the apartment house where he lives and found seven Smith families living there."

Six Mr. Smith's declared they didn't owe you anything, and the seventh kicked me out of his apartment."

"That's the one. Go right back and get the money."

Little Bobby wanted a birthday party, to which his mother consented, provided he asked his little friend Peter. The boys had had trouble, but rather than not have a party, Bobby promised his mother to invite Peter.

On the evening of the party, when all the small guests had arrived except Peter, the mother became suspicious and sought her son.

"Bobby," she said, "did you invite Peter to your party tonight?" "Of course I did, mother."

"And did he say he would come?" "No," explained Bobby. "I invited him to come all right, but I dared him to."

"Why don't you brush your hair?" asked the man of the boy, with the frowzy head.

"Ain't got no brush."

"Why don't you use your father's brush?"

"He ain't got no brush."

"No brush? Why hasn't he a brush?"

"Ain't got no hair."
